

Menstrual Health Management [MHM] is basic to everything girls and women do: education, work, and for climate change solutions and mitigation -- public participation. This panel, including women from India, Nigeria and the USA who belong NGOs, academe and GenZ, will present different perspectives on the neglect of MHM and argue MHM must be addressed to ensure the the participation of girls and women in public life to confront climate change.

Panelists

Geraldine Forbes

Baitali Ganguly

Gozie Udemezue

Jameela Nishat

Anne Sebert Kuhlmann

Ajailiu Niumai

Shanaya Haque

Lauren Mesina

Paula Banerjee

Bloody Necessity: Menstrual Health Management as Basic to Participation in Climate Change

Date: Mar 18, 2022

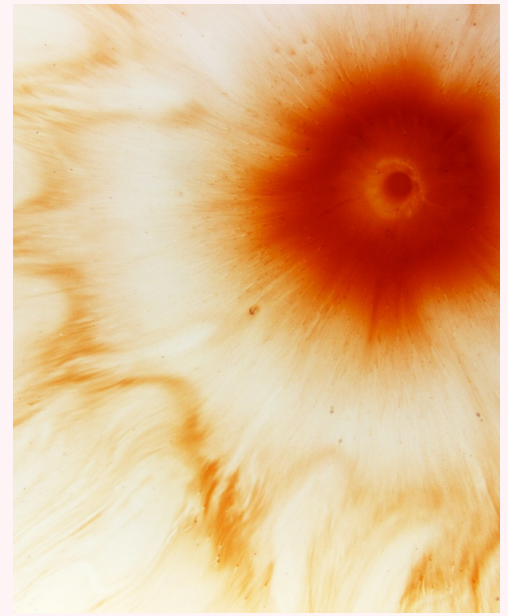

Time: 8 AM EST

Event ID #: 12315

Register on ZOOM

Panelists

1. Geraldine Forbes, Executive Director, Women Founders Collective, “Introduction”
2. Baitali Ganguly, Founder/ Director of Jabala Action Research in Kolkata, India, “Menstrual Health Management During Climate Disasters”
3. Gozie Udemezue, Founder & Lead Coach, Wevolution Coaching Services and Founder the Healing Hearts Widows Support Foundation in Enugu, Nigeria. “Menstruation and Rural girls in Nigeria: Breaking the Culture of Silence”
4. Jameela Nishat, Urdu Poet and founder of the Shaheen Collective: Shaheen Women’s Resource and Welfare Association, “Including Girls in Public Life: the Importance of Menstrual Health Management“
5. Anne Sebert Kuhlmann, Associate Professor, College for Public Health & Social Justice, Saint Louis University “Period Product Insecurity Among Students at St. Louis, Missouri (USA): Reusable Pads as Part of the Solution.“
6. Ajailiu Niumai, Head, Centre for the Study of Social Exclusion & Inclusive Policy, University of Hyderabad, India, “Menstruation of the Urban Slum Women in Hyderabad: A Path Towards Sustainability”
7. Shanaya Haque (Virginia Tech) and Lauren Mesina (University of Virginia), “Creating Menstrual Health Activists in under Three Minutes: How GenZ is Reshaping the Dialogue”
8. Paula Banerjee, Professor of South and Southeast Asian studies at the University of Calcutta, India, “Climate Migration and Just Transition”

REGISTER HERE

SCAN ME

